What We Do

The chaos and confusion that accompany war, disaster and international migration can separate families when they need each other most. When this happens, the Red Cross joins the search across international borders, offering a unique service that allows families to reconnect.

Tracing

American Red Cross caseworkers at local chapters around the U.S. help families locate missing relatives by working with our partners - the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and Red Cross and Red Crescent organizations in nearly every country around the world.

This past year, the American Red Cross helped reconnect thousands of families--bridging years of separation to renew critical links between new communities in the U.S. and their families abroad.

Red Cross Messages

Once a family member is found, the Red Cross helps them reconnect through written messages or by phone. Messages can be very brief, but the three short words "I am alive" may be all that is needed to ease the minds of distraught relatives half a world away. Red Cross messages can also be exchanged between families and their loved ones in refugee camps and detention centers to allow them to keep in contact and share family news.

World War II Cases

The American Red Cross restoring Family Links Team continues to work with our national and international partners to reconnect family who were separated during the Holocaust and the second world war.

Migration Cases

Migration leaves millions of people around the globe in urgent need of humanitarian assistance every year. American Red Cross caseworkers at local chapter offices help families locate missing relatives that have been separated due to migration. Caseworkers reconnect families a local call centers, Red Cross messages or tracing cases.
