Foreword

The National Archives and Records Administration is responsible for administering the permanently valuable noncurrent records of the federal government. The holdings of the National Archives now amount to more than 1.3 million cubic feet. They date from the First Continental Congress and consist of the basic records of the legislative, judicial, and executive branches of government. The Presidential libraries of Herbert Hoover, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry S. Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F.

Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson, and Gerald R. Ford contain the papers of those Presidents and many of their associates in office. These research resources document significant events in our nation's history, but most of them are preserved for continuing practical use in the ordinary processes of government; for the protection of individual rights; and for the research use of scholars, students, and other individual researchers.

The National Archives Microfilm Publication Program

Since 1941, the National Archives has been microfilming selected groups of federal records that have high research value. Under this program, negative microfilm is retained by the National Archives and positive prints are made from these master negatives and sold at moderate prices. The chief purposes of the program are to make archival sources more easily accessible to libraries, research centers, and individuals and to ensure against loss of valuable information should the original records be destroyed. In this way, microfilm publications are a partial answer to the researcher's need for more extensive publication of archival materials, because they provide a relatively inexpensive method by which he or she can obtain facsimile reproductions of entire series of documents.

Although the microfilm publication program is one of the oldest continuing programs of the National Archives, it was not firmly established financially until 1948, when a grant of $20,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation provided for accelerated production of microfilm and ensured the continuation of the program through the establishment of a revolving fund. By 1982, more than 175,000 rolls of master negative microfilm had been produced.

National Archives microfilm publications now provide basic documentation for research in the fields of American, European, Far Eastern, African, and Latin American history as well as in local history and genealogy. They are also valuable for work in other fields, such as economics, public administration, political science, law, and ethnology. As the program has developed, more emphasis has been placed on microfilming groups of records that are directly related to one another, as in the case of records relating to the same general subject or to a specific geographic area. In this way researchers can obtain reasonably complete documentation in many fields of interest. For example, a number of microfilm publications document diplomatic, consular, and naval relations between the United States and the Far Eastern countries of China, Japan, and Korea from the late 18th century. Similarly, almost complete coverage of relations between the United States and other countries throughout the world is provided. Microfilm publications have also been produced concerning the administration of affairs in individual territories of the United States.

Types of Microfilm Publications

National Archives microfilm publications are divided into two series, identified by M numbers and T numbers. In general, records selected for filming as M publications have high research value for a variety of studies, and the ratio of research value to volume is high. Usually each publication reproduces an entire series of records. Most M publications include explanatory material prepared by archivists to help researchers glean information from the filmed records more easily. M publications usually have an introduction that describes the origin, content, and arrangement of the filmed records and lists related records. Some introductions also include special aids, such as indexes and registers.

Descriptive pamphlets (DPs) are available for many M publications. Each pamphlet contains the publication's introduction (including special lists or indexes prepared to simplify the use of the microfilm publication) and a table of contents that identifies the material contained on each roll. M publications that have descriptive pamphlets are indicated in this catalog by the symbol DP at the end of a publication title. The pamphlets are made available on request to prospective purchasers so they can evaluate more thoroughly the value of the publication's contents for their research.

T publications, unlike M publications, do not usually reproduce a complete series of records; that is, they may contain only segments, by date or subject, of a larger series. In many cases, T publications were produced in response to specific reference requests. Also, over the years the National Archives has accessioned as record material microfilm produced by other federal agencies. Some of this film, when it is not defense classified and is deemed of sufficient research value, is reproduced and made available for sale as T publications. These publications are reproduced and sold exactly as they were filmed; they contain no introductions, nor are descriptive pamphlets available for them.

Catalogs of Microfilm Publications

This catalog is one in a series describing National Archives microfilm publications related to subjects of high research interest. Each catalog is being compiled through an extensive review of all micro-filmed records to locate publications relevant to each topic. The catalogs contain both detailed descriptions of the records and roll-by-roll listings for each publication.

The other catalogs in the series cover the following topics:

- American Indians
- Black Studies
- Diplomatic Records
- Genealogical and Biographical Research
- Immigrant and Passenger Arrivals
- Military Service Records

These catalogs are part of a larger effort undertaken by the National Archives Trust Fund to increase public awareness of the availability of the records in the National Archives and to improve access to them. If you have suggestions of new catalog topics, new types of products based on the holdings, or new ways in which the Trust Fund can help you with your research, please contact the National Archives Trust Fund Board (NAJ), National Archives, Washington, D.C. 20408.

Microfilm Pricing Policy

The price of each roll of microfilm in this catalog is $20. Prices are subject to change without advance public notice. Film can be bought as either individual rolls or a complete publications.

The microfilm price includes the cost of film stock, chemicals, boxes and reels, postage, and salaries. A fixed price per roll has been established because most of the costs of reproducing and selling microfilm are the same for all rolls of film, regardless of length. The establishment of such a price permits a substantial savings in order processing costs.

The National Archives microfilm publications program is financed from a trust fund established by the National Archives Trust Fund Board Act (44 U.S.C. 2307). Revenue received through the sale of microfilm publications is returned to the Trust Fund for use in financing additional publications and other products designed both to facilitate access to federal records held by the National Archives and to make them more widely available to a larger portion of the public.

Microfilm Specifications

All microfilm sold through the National Archives Microfilm Publications program is silver-halide positive microfilm. Unless otherwise specified, it is 35mm reel microfilm, with plastic reels. Reduction ratios used range from 12:1 to 20:1. The number of frames on each reel varies.

In some instances, it is possible to obtain either microfilm in a different form (e.g., duplicate negative rather than positive) or paper copies. If you desire such services, please contact the Publications Sales Branch (NEPS), National Archives, Washington, DC 20408 (phone: 202-523-3181), for a price quotation.

Introduction

This select catalog lists National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) microfilm publications of records that relate to the history of U.S. diplomatic relations. The catalog includes records dealing specifically with the internal affairs of other countries and with the personnel and operations of the U.S. Foreign Service. Unlike other catalogs in this series, Diplomatic Records is divided into four parts, each arranged differently. This arrangement provides researchers with several different means of reference.

- Part 1 is arranged by record group and thereafter by subgroup or series, with publications of the same type (such as diplomatic and consular instructions and despatches, notes to and from foreign legations and consulates, numerical and decimal file, and administrative records) listed either chronologically or alphabetically, depending on the nature of the publications.
- Part 2 describes the State Department's decimal file (1910–63) and lists the publications that reproduce decimal file documents.
- Part 3 lists publications dealing with specific countries, alphabetically by country name.
- Part 4 lists all publications in numerical order by publication number, with complete titles and roll-by-roll lists of the microfilm. M-publication numbers are listed first, followed by T-publication numbers.

Most of the microfilmed records described in this catalog are among General Records of the Department of State, Record Group (RG) 59. This record group contains all correspondence of the Department of State, as well as records of administrative units, records relating to various functions of the department, and records relating to special subjects or events. Other record groups that contain Department of State records included in this catalog are listed below.

Due to the tremendous amount of material included in this catalog and the size limitations imposed by its format, not all of the microfilm publications listed have been individually described here. However, some publications are accompanied by descriptive pamphlets (DPs), indicated on the lists that follow by the letters "DP" at the end of each title.

Descriptive pamphlets contain explanations of the origin, content, and arrangement of the records. Since individual rolls of microfilm in each microfilm publication may be purchased separately, researchers who wish to order microfilm publications that have DPs may want to consult the pamphlets before ordering. To order DPs, write to the Publications Services Branch (NEPS), National Archives, Washington, DC, 20408.

For more information on National Archives diplomatic records, researchers should refer to Preliminary Inventory of the General Records of the Department of State, PI 157, compiled by Daniel T. Goggin and H. Stephen Helton; the Records of the American Commission to Negotiate Peace, Inventory of Record Group 256, Inv. 9, compiled by Sandra K. Rangel; and Recordkeeping in the Department of State, 1789–1956, Reference Information Paper No. 74, compiled by H. Stephen Helton. Other publications that could be of interest to researchers include The National Archives and Foreign Relations Research, Milton O. Gustafson, ed. (National Archives Conferences, Vol. 4. Athens, Ohio: Ohio University Press, 1974), available from NEPS, and A Short History of the U.S. Department of State, 1781–1981, U.S. Department of State (Washington: Department of State Publication 9166, 1981).

The records listed in this catalog are from the following record groups:

Record Group	Title
43	Records of International Conferences, Commissions, and Expositions
59	General Records of the Department of State
76	Records of Boundary and Claims Commissions and Arbitrations
84	Records of Foreign Service Posts of the Department of State
242	National Archives Collection of Foreign Records Seized, 1941–
256	Records of the American Commission To Negotiate Peace
261	Records of Former Russian Agencies
353	Records of Interdepartmental and Intradepartmental Committees (State Department)

This catalog was written and compiled by John H. Hedges, with the kind assistance of Mary Ryan, Constance Potter, and others.

PART 1: PUBLICATIONS ARRANGED BY RECORD GROUP

On July 27, 1789, the President of the United States approved an act of Congress (1 Stat. 28) that provided for the first executive department of the federal government. Designated as the Department of Foreign Affairs, the new department was established to help the President carry out his constitutional responsibility for conducting relations with foreign governments. By an act of September 15, 1789 (1 Stat. 68), Congress changed the name of the Department of Foreign Affairs to the Department of State and assigned numerous domestic functions to the Secretary of State, such as preserving and publishing laws and treaties, keeping the Seal of the United States, and acting as custodian for the records formerly held by the Secretary of Congress, 1774–89. From time to time over the years the Secretary's domestic duties were expanded, then transferred to other agencies, so that today the responsibilities of the Department of State lie almost entirely in the field of foreign affairs.

The department helps the President promote and maintain friendly relations with foreign countries. It aids in negotiating treaties and other international agreements, in determining measures to be taken to fulfill treaty obligations, in protecting U.S. foreign interests and U.S. citizens abroad, in deciding on the recognition of new governments and determining the status of belligerents, and in receiving foreign diplomatic agents to the United States and issuing exequaturs (recognition of credentials) to foreign consuls. The department administers the U.S. Foreign Service, conducts diplomatic and consular correspondence, gathers information on political and economic conditions throughout the world, and carries out the laws and regulations governing alien immigration, the issuance of passports, and the international traffic in arms, munitions, and implements of war. Records that reflect this activity are in several different record groups (see page 1 for a list of record groups).

General Records of the Department of State (Record Group 59)

Records created or filed at the Department of State (RG 59) are in two major subgroups: central file records, and records filed outside the central file because they relate to certain administrative functions, organizational units, or special subjects or events.

The National Archives has received records from each recordkeeping period (1789–1906, 1906–10, 1910–29, 1930–39, 1940–44, 1945–49, 1950–54, and 1955–59) and has maintained the original divisions. The microfilm publications of the records reflect these periodic divisions and the arrangement of the records. Therefore, the organization of the publications of RG 59 in this catalog reflects this arrangement. For a list of all publications by country, refer to part 3.

Central Files

Central file records from 1789 to 1906 are grouped in the following categories according to the type of correspondence and its source:

- Diplomatic Correspondence
Instructions to Diplomatic Officers
Despatches from Diplomatic Officers
Notes to Foreign Missions in the United States
Notes from Foreign Missions in the United States
- Consular Correspondence
Instructions to Consuls
Despatches from Consuls
Notes to Foreign Consuls in the United States
Notes from Foreign Consuls in the United States
- Miscellaneous Correspondence
Domestic Letters (letters sent)
Miscellaneous Letters (letters received)

In 1906 the State Department stopped dividing correspondence according to type and source. All records, including memorandums and correspondence, were filed by subject in one main series — the numerical file. Each new subject was given a case number assigned sequentially. After only 4 years, however, the number of cases had reached an unmanageable 25,892.

In 1910, the department adopted a more comprehensive subject filing system — the decimal file. This was a complex arrangement scheme in which countries and areas, subjects and issues, and embassies and consulates were given numbers by which documents were coded and arranged. These numbers, originally assigned according to the world political situation in 1910, were revised and modified over the years. The decimal system was finally discontinued as of January 1, 1963.

Finding Aids for the Central Files

Registers of Correspondence of the Department of State, 1870–1906. M17. 71 rolls.

Reproduced on the 71 rolls of this microfilm publication are register volumes that serve as finding aids to central file correspondence for the period from 1870 to 1906.

Rolls 1–10 contain 10 register volumes for despatches from U.S. diplomatic officers (see page 5), and notes from foreign missions in the United States (see page 12). The entries in each volume are arranged alphabetically by country, thereunder as despatches or notes, and thereunder chronologically. Each register entry gives the name of the sender of the despatch or note, its date and number, and a brief digest of its contents. Each volume covers a 2- to 5-year period.

On rolls 11–18 are eight register volumes for instructions sent by the Department of State to U.S. diplomatic officers (see M77, page 5) and notes to legations and embassies of foreign countries in the United States (see M99, page 12).

Rolls 19–32 reproduce 14 register volumes of despatches from U.S. consuls (see pages 6–12). Within each volume the register is arranged alphabetically by country, thereunder alphabetically by name of consulate, and thereunder chronologically.

On rolls 33–44 are 12 register volumes for instructions to U.S. consuls, none of which has been microfilmed, and notes to foreign consuls in the United States (see M663, page 12).

Rolls 45–56 contain 12 register volumes (1860–1906) of miscellaneous letters received (see M179, page 13). The entries in each volume are arranged alphabetically by first letter of the writer's surname and thereunder chronologically.

Finally, rolls 57–71 reproduce 15 register volumes (1802–11, 1840–1906) for domestic letters sent (see M40, page 13). The entries in each volume are arranged alphabetically by the surname of the person or the name of the agency addressed.

Purport Lists for the Department of State Decimal File, 1910–1944. M973. 654 rolls. DP.

These lists serve as a complete index to all the documents in the central decimal file from the adoption of the decimal system in 1910 through 1944. Arranged in decimal number order, they give the individual document number, the name of each correspondent, the date sent or received, and a brief description of contents for each document in the central decimal file for this period. The descriptive pamphlet for M973 gives a description of the decimal file system (including country numbers and subject codes) as well as a roll-by-roll list of the microfilm.

Diplomatic and Consular Instructions

Until the 20th century, consular and diplomatic posts operated with a great degree of autonomy from the Department of State in Washington, DC. Although the posts communicated most matters of consequence, they usually performed their routine duties with little supervision by the department.

The series of diplomatic and consular instructions from the department to its foreign service posts abroad includes virtually all letters and other correspondence sent to these posts by the department. Some of these communications give notice of appointments, convey information about foreign countries or inquiries concerning policy or actions to be taken, express approval or disapproval of proposals or actions, or merely transmit enclosures; the greater number, however, are instructions in the most definite and narrow sense. Some of the instructions concern such matters as the protection of U.S. citizens (including the issuance of passports and the settlement of estates of U.S. citizens who died abroad); the relief and protection of U.S. seamen in foreign ports; commercial matters, such as the inspection of vessels and information for customs officials; and the administration of consulates.

Foreign Letters of the Continental Congress and the Department of State, 1785–1790. M61. 1 roll. DP.

This publication is for copies of instructions sent to U.S. ministers and consuls abroad during the earliest years of U.S. foreign relations. The letters sent by John Jay, Secretary for Foreign Affairs and later acting head of the Department of State, date from January 14, 1785, to March 3, 1790; those sent by Thomas Jefferson, Secretary of State, date from March 30 to December 23, 1790. The original volume, entitled "Foreign Letters No. 121," from which these documents were taken, succeeds Item 118 of the Papers of the Continental and Confederation Congresses. The records are arranged in chronological order.

Diplomatic and Consular Instructions of the Department of State, 1791–1801. M28. 5 rolls. DP.

Before 1791, the newly formed Department of State filed copies of outgoing letters in two separate file series, foreign letters and domestic letters. In 1791, the foreign letters were continued as "Diplomatic and Consular Instructions." This correspondence consists of copies of letters sent to U.S. officials, including diplomatic and consular representatives, special agents, and bearers of despatches, from January 23, 1791 to September 28, 1801. Although these instructions are a continuation of the foreign letters reproduced in M61, their titles and volume numbers do not indicate this. The general order of arrangement is chronological, but many exceptions occur.

Diplomatic Instructions of the Department of State, 1801–1906. M77. 175 rolls. DP.

In 1801, the Department of State began separating instructions to its Foreign Service officers into two separate series, diplomatic instructions and consular instructions.

This microfilm publication reproduces 205 complete volumes and part of another volume that consist chiefly of record copies of communications sent to U.S. diplomatic and quasi-diplomatic representatives assigned to service abroad. These representatives included ambassadors, envoys, ministers of various ranks, chargés d'affaires, secretaries of legations, special agents, consuls (when vested with diplomatic responsibilities), and bearers of despatches or special messages.

The numbering system for these volumes is somewhat complicated. In spite of the label "United States Ministers, Instructions," the first 5 of the 13 volumes labeled in this manner contain communications to consular as well as diplomatic officials. Moreover, the chronological order is not always maintained. The descriptive pamphlet provides additional information and three indexes to these records, arranged as follows:

1. By states and quasi-states, with the roll numbers that contain material relating to each in M77 as well as in M28 and M61.
2. By country, listing the officials to whom instructions entered in volumes 6–13 were addressed, with inclusive dates of the instructions.
3. By surname of the above-mentioned officials, arranged alphabetically.

The first two lists are arranged alphabetically by name of country and thereunder chronologically.

Consular Instructions of the Department of State, 1801–1834. M78. 7 rolls.

This microfilm publication reproduces copies of letters sent to U.S. officials assigned to consular service abroad. Some of these instructions are requests for trade reports or intelligence information, while others refer to specific cases, individuals, and U.S. sea vessels. The letters are arranged chronologically rather than by the names of the cities in which the consulates were located.

Diplomatic Despatches

Diplomatic despatches consist of reports, with related enclosures, to the Department of State from its diplomatic representatives in foreign countries. They relate to all phases of U.S. diplomatic relations with foreign countries and to the administration of U.S. legations and embassies. The despatches reply to diplomatic instructions and report on economic, political, and social conditions in a specific geographical area; piracy; the protection of missionaries; prohibition of the opium trade; floods, famines, and epidemics; treaties and arrangements; and activities of U.S. citizens or officials. Among the related enclosures are newspaper clippings, copies of notes to and from the foreign offices of various countries, publications, and ceremonial letters. Some communications are marked "Private" or "Confidential."

The despatches are arranged chronologically within each publication. There are separate publications for each country, except in cases where U.S. diplomatic officers were accredited to more than one government, as in Central America. Each despatch gives the name of the writer, the date received, and a digest of the contents. See the entries under each publication number in part 4 for complete titles and dates of despatches on each roll.

Consular Despatches

Consular despatches consist of reports to the Department of State from U.S. consular representatives abroad. The despatches reply to consular instructions and report on a wide range of subjects dealing with economic, political, and social conditions abroad in addition to routine matters. Many of the despatches are accompanied by enclosures, such as copies of correspondence between consuls and local government officials, U.S. diplomatic representatives, other consuls, U.S. naval officers commanding naval vessels or squadrons stationed in foreign waters, and U.S. citizens abroad.

Some despatches relate to commercial and other regulations, navigation law, exports and imports, duties and tariffs, censuses, cases of U.S. citizens tried abroad and appeals for help, and the reaction of foreign people to U.S. policies.

These despatches are grouped into separate publications for each consular post and within each post are arranged chronologically. See part 3 for lists of consular despatches by country. See the entries under each publication number in part 4 for complete titles and dates of despatches on each roll.

Notes To Foreign Legations and Consulates

The following three publications (M38, M99, and M663) reproduce record copies of letters and other correspondence sent by the Department of State to foreign diplomatic and consular officials stationed in the United States. Most of the letters are either requests for information and policy clarification on matters of interest to the United States or State Department responses to similar requests from the representatives of other nations. Some of the letters are ceremonial, including those sent as official recognition of a particular envoy's diplomatic credentials, as well as invitations to meetings, ceremonies, funerals, and other events. A few of the notes are "circulars," sent to several or all foreign legations or consulates simultaneously, outlining important U.S. policies, decrees, and initiatives.

Most of the correspondence sent by the department to foreign legations and consulates was copied for the central file; occasionally, however, notes on more routine matters were not copied and therefore are not included in these publications. Some earlier notes to foreign representatives can be found in M40, Domestic Letters of the Department of State, 1784–1906.

Notes From the Department of State to Foreign Ministers and Consuls in the United States, 1793–1834. M38. 5 rolls.

From 1793 to 1834 the Department of State placed record copies of all correspondence to foreign legations and consulates into a single file series, arranged chronologically in five volumes. A list of the documents appears at the beginning of each volume.

Notes to Foreign Legations in the United States From the Department of State, 1834–1906. M99. 99 rolls.

In 1834, the Department of State began arranging notes to foreign legations and consulates alphabetically by the name of each country, and thereunder in volumes arranged chronologically. In 1853 the department began to keep correspondence addressed to foreign consuls separately (see M663 below). Until 1870, indexes to the documents were included at the beginning of each volume. Documents for 1870–1906 are indexed in M17, Registers of Correspondence of the Department of State, rolls 11–18.

Notes to Foreign Consuls in the United States From the Department of State, 1853–1906. M663. 4 rolls.

When the Department of State began separating notes to foreign diplomatic and consular representatives into two separate series, the consular correspondence was filed chronologically without regard to country names. Many of the letters reproduced in this publication relate to the protection of citizens of foreign countries in the United States; discharge of foreign nationals from the U.S. armed forces; requests for certificates of birth, death, marriage, and other documents; extradition proceedings; violation of neutrality laws; and recognition of consular credentials. The letters are contained in four volumes, each of which is on a separate roll of this publication. Volume 1 and the first part of volume 2 contain registers of the documents. Notes dated from August 1, 1867, to May 31, 1870, are unregistered. Notes dated after June 1, 1870, in this publication are registered on rolls 33–44 of M17, Registers of Correspondence of the Department of State, 1870–1906.

Notes From Foreign Legations and Consulates

Notes from foreign legations are communications to the Department of State from foreign legations and embassies in the United States. Many of these notes are accompanied by enclosures, such as communications from foreign offices, heads of state, consuls, and private citizens. Notes and enclosures are in Dutch, English, Spanish, French, and other languages and are often accompanied by translations prepared by the Department of State. Specific enclosures include copies of proclamations, speeches, issues of newspapers, and notes by U.S. officials commenting on these communications.

The subjects of these communications are similar to those of the correspondence contained in "Notes To Foreign Legations," letters from which have been reproduced on M99 for the years 1834–1906 (see above). The records relate to many phases of U.S. relations with foreign countries and reflect the attitudes of foreign governments to U.S. policies. They concern topics such as duties and tariffs, trade and extradition agreements, the rights of vessels in the open sea, transportation, scientific information, cultural affairs, and compulsory military service by resident aliens.

The notes are arranged chronologically within each publication. See the entries under each publication number in part 4 for complete titles and dates on each roll.

Notes From Foreign Consuls in the United States to the Department of State, 1789–1906. M664. 11 rolls.

This microfilm publication reproduces letters written to the Department of State from consular representatives of foreign countries stationed in various cities in the United States. The notes deal with such topics as the protection of foreign citizens in the United States, the discharge of foreigners from the U.S. armed forces, questions concerning the estates and property of foreign citizens, and the credentials of the consuls themselves. The notes are arranged chronologically without regard to country or city names. Notes before 1870 are not indexed; indexes to notes sent from 1870 to 1906 can be found in Registers of Correspondence, M17.

Miscellaneous Correspondence

Domestic Letters of the Department of State, 1784–1906. M40. 171 rolls.

This microfilm publication includes record copies of all domestic letters written by the Department of State before the adoption of the numerical file system in 1906.

Before 1804, the domestic letters file series consisted of all letters addressed by the department to persons in the United States, including foreign diplomatic and consular officials. In 1804 the department began the file series "Notes to Foreign Legations," after which only a few items of correspondence addressed to foreign officials in the United States were reproduced in the domestic letters series.

The letters reproduced in this publication dated after 1804 primarily consist of letters to private citizens, state and local government officials, and federal government officials. Most of the letters were written in response to complaints regarding the treatment of U.S. citizens visiting foreign countries, requests for information about foreign customs and laws, U.S. treaties and protocols with other countries, and U.S. policies toward other countries. (See Miscellaneous Letters, M179.)

The letters are arranged in roughly chronological order; those which deviate from this order are usually accompanied by notes inserted in the margins that refer to other letters that have been misplaced. The letters are grouped into volumes, each of which begins with an alphabetical index to the letters. Volumes 12 and 13 (July 1799–April 1802) were lost sometime before 1819. Some rolls contain two volumes, but no single volume is contained on more than one roll.

Miscellaneous Letters of the Department of State, 1789–1906. M179. 1,310 rolls. DP.

This publication reproduces most of the original letters and related enclosures received by the Department of State from sources other than U.S. and foreign diplomatic and consular officers. Many contain complaints from U.S. shipmasters, merchants, and travelers about their treatment abroad. Others contain requests for information on foreign customs and laws as well as the provisions of various treaties and their interpretations. Some are letters from federal and state government officials on matters relating to customs laws, diplomatic questions, the publishing of laws, and communications between officials of various states of the union.

The letters are arranged chronologically. Roll 1 contains "calendars" (indexes) of the letters for 1789–1825, which are arranged alphabetically by the name of each letter writer, and thereunder chronologically. The indexes serve as finding aids for the letters received during those years.

The Numerical File, 1906–1910

Numerical and Minor Files of the Department of State, 1906–1910. M862. 1,241 rolls. DP.

Between 1789 and 1906, the Department of State used a central filing system in which different types of documents (e.g., diplomatic and consular instructions and despatches, notes to and from foreign legations, etc.) were kept in separate files and arranged alphabetically by the origin of each document (country or city name for official diplomatic and consular correspondence) and chronologically for miscellaneous and domestic letters.

In 1906, the Bureau of Indexes and Archives devised a numerical file system for the central files so that all documents relating to a particular subject or case would be located in the same place, in the order in which they were received. Using this scheme, each new subject or individual case was assigned the next number in an overall sequence. Each document in a case file was given an individual number, separated from the case file number by a slash ("/"). For example, when the department received a note dated August 16, 1906, from the Italian Embassy in the United States concerning the Algeciras Conference, a case file was established for political affairs in Morocco and given the next unassigned case file number, 295. Subsequent documents on the same subject were placed in the same file and given a document number, such as 295/2. As the number of cases grew larger, several case numbers were frequently assigned for the same general subject matter. For example, cases 421, 699, and 2151 also concern political conditions in Morocco.

Correspondence relating to routine matters was placed in the minor file, which was arranged in alphabetical order based on the origin of each document (country or city name for diplomatic correspondence and correspondent's name for miscellaneous correspondence).

After 4 years, a more adaptable and expandable filing system was needed since the number of numerical case files had grown to more than 25,000. The numerical system was therefore abandoned in favor of the decimal system, adopted by the department in 1910.

M862 contains both the numerical file (rolls 1-1178) and the minor file (rolls 1179-1240). The Diplomatic Branch has a card index to both the numerical and minor files, arranged alphabetically by subject, and the "Purport Lists" of all cases in the numerical file, arranged in the order in which the case files would have appeared under the decimal file system.

The Decimal File, 1910–1963

When the department's numerical file (1906–10) proved unsatisfactory, the Department of State began to arrange central file records by subject according to a new decimal file system. Under the new system, documents were placed under one of nine major subject classes and thereunder arranged by country. The nine major subject classes were numbered 0 to 8, as follows:

0. General and Miscellaneous
  1. Administration of the U.S. Government
  2. Extradition Treaties and Cases
  3. Protection of Private and National Interests
  4. International Claims Treaties and Cases
  5. Multilateral Treaties; International Conferences and Organizations
  6. Commerce, Customs, and Trade Agreements
  7. Political and Treaty Relations of States
  8. Internal Affairs of States

Each country was assigned a two-digit number (e.g., France [51] and Great Britain [41]), and documents pertaining to each country were further arranged into more specific subject classes, each of which was also numbered.

Most of the records reproduced on microfilm from the State Department decimal file belong to classes 7 and 8. The documents are mostly instructions to and despatches from diplomatic and consular officials. The despatches are often accompanied by enclosures, such as diplomatic notes exchanged, pamphlets, and issues of newspapers. They also contain letters and telegrams from private individuals and from officials, notes from foreign diplomatic representatives in the United States, and memorandums prepared by State Department officials. Many of the records show popular opinion regarding relations between the United States and other states. At the beginning of many decimal file microfilm publications is a list of documents containing brief abstracts of the contents, which serves as a finding aid; the lists are also filmed on M973.

Many of the materials in the decimal file were classified in the interest of national security. Documents that were classified at the time the records were microfilmed were removed and are not available on the microfilm. The National Archives and Records Administration does not have the authority to make security-classified documents available to the public. Since these publications were filmed, however, many of these documents may have been declassified and are available to researchers at the National Archives Building.

Manual for Classification of Correspondence, Department of State (4th ed., 1938). M600. 1 roll.

This microfilm publication describes in detail the procedures for numbering and filing documents by the decimal file system as revised in 1938. It contains complete explanations of subject and country codes for each classification of the system. More revisions were made later, but this particular publication provides the most useful guide to the decimal file system that was used from 1910 to 1949.

Records of the Department of State, Records Codification Manual, Central Decimal File, 1950-1963. M1275. 1 roll.

This publication is a reproduction of the 1950 revision of the decimal file system of correspondence classification, used until the adoption of a more complex system of recordkeeping in 1963.

Records of the Department of State Relating to Property Claims of U.S. Citizens Against Poland, 1930-1944. T461. 8 rolls.

This microfilm publication consists mostly of records from the State Department decimal file indexed with the designation "360c.11" — "3" referring to Protection of Interests, "60c" to Poland and "11" to the United States. Some of the records are designated "460c.11," in which the "4" refers to the general subject heading of International Claims. Most of the claims cases concern property and bank accounts held by U.S. citizens during the period before and after the Nazi invasion of August 1939.

The records are grouped into case files, each of which contains a letter from a claimant to the department stating his or her claim, and the department's reply. Some files include more extensive correspondence and copies of documents to uphold the claims. The records are arranged in two sections, 1930-39 (rolls 1-3), and 1940-49 (rolls 4-8). Within the two sections, the case files are arranged by decimal file number, with claims labeled "360c.11" coming before those labeled "460c.11." Within each decimal designation the case files are arranged alphabetically by name of claimant and thereunder chronologically.

Records of the Department of State Relating to U.S. Claims Against Russia, 1910-1929. T640. 8 rolls.

After the Bolsheviks took power in the Russian Revolution of 1917, the Revolutionary Government quickly took steps to seize large amounts of land and property in the name of the state. As a result, irate U.S. citizens who were property holders in Russia began writing letters to the U.S. embassy there (as well as the State Department), hoping to safeguard their investments by having the U.S. government put pressure on the Soviet revolutionaries to stop the seizures and return the property. This microfilm publication contains most of these letters, as well as responses and memorandums from the State Department relating to the claims.

The claims, some of which precede the Russian Revolution, were filed under the decimal file heading "461.11," Claims Against Russia made by the United States. The documents in this microfilm publication are grouped into cases and arranged alphabetically; within each case file the arrangement is roughly chronological.

Publications of the Decimal File Relating to Internal Affairs of States and Political Relations Between States, 1910-1963

The National Archives has produced more than 175 separate microfilm publications of complete files relating to the internal affairs and the political relations of states. When microfilming began on records of the decimal file, it was decided to create three separate publications for each country or area:

- Internal Affairs (file 8)
- Political Relations Between Foreign States and the United States (file 711)
- Political Relations Between Foreign States and Other States (file 7)

Publications relating to internal affairs of other states (class 8) generally include despatches, instructions, and miscellaneous correspondence dealing with topics such as political affairs and government; public order and safety; military affairs; social matters (including history and culture); economic conditions (including immigration and emigration); industry and agriculture; communications and transportation; and navigation.

Publications relating to political relations between states (class 7) include documents on such subjects as bilateral treaties; war, peace, alliances, arms limitations, and boundary questions; commerce and navigation; extra-territoriality; naturalization; literary, artistic, and industrial property; and various other issues such as fur seals and fisheries.

A detailed list of these publications is provided in part 2, arranged in decimal file order. Also see part 3 under the heading "Records of the Department of State Relating to:" for each country listed. Please refer to part 4 for complete titles of individual publications.

Other Records

The following publications of Record Group 59 are reproductions of records not originally kept in the Department of State's central file. These include personnel, accounting and administrative records, as well as records kept separately from the central file because of their relevance to certain special subjects or events, such as wars, treaty negotiations, missions of special agents, and the confidential high-level correspondence of Presidents and Secretaries of State.

Personnel Records

List of U.S. Diplomatic Officers, 1789-1939. M566. 3 rolls. DP.

This microfilm publication reproduces the State Department's lists of U.S. diplomatic officers, 1789-1939. For each diplomatic post they give the officers' names with their titles and grades, nationalities, places and dates of birth, residences, and date of appointment. Occasionally, dates of death, retirement, termination of service, or transfer to another post are also given. Roll 1 also lists unusual changes in the diplomatic service and gives the names of diplomatic agents who were elected, commissioned, or otherwise authorized to perform in diplomatic positions abroad before the U.S. Constitution was adopted. The lists of officers are arranged alphabetically by country and thereunder by class of officer (such as ambassador, chargé d'affaires, and so on) and date of appointment.

List of U.S. Consular Officers, 1789–1939. M587. 21 rolls. DP.

This microfilm publication reproduces lists of U.S. consular officers, 1789 to 1939. For each consular post the lists record the names of consular officers with appointment and indentifying information similar to that contained in M586 for diplomatic officers (see above). The lists are arranged alphabetically by post, then by class of officer (e.g., consul, vice-consul, and so on), and finally by date of appointment.

Acceptances and Orders for Commissions in the Records of the Department of State, 1789–1828. T645. 2 rolls.

This publication contains letters, 1789–1828, addressed to the President or the Secretary of State from persons accepting appointments to federal office and from other departments ordering that commissions for such appointments be issued. Roll 1 contains letters sent between 1789 and 1820; roll 2, 1821–28. Letters are arranged in alphabetical order by surname of correspondent within each roll.

Resignations and Declinations Among the Records of the Department of State, 1789–1827. T730. 1 roll.

This roll of microfilm reproduces approximately 160 letters addressed to either the President or the Secretary of State, offering resignations from or declining appointments to federal office. The letters are arranged in alphabetical order by surname of correspondent.

Letters of Application and Recommendation

In the early years of the United States, the Department of State was responsible not only for the conduct of foreign affairs but also for most aspects of domestic administration not related to war or finance. Over the years the department transferred most of its domestic functions to other agencies; however, it maintained letters of application and recommendation for a variety of federal offices until 1901. Many of these letters are from or about prominent persons and thus have unique biographical value.

The microfilm publications listed here reproduce letters of application and recommendation for positions in various branches of the federal government from 1797 to 1877. The bulk of the original records relate to positions within the State Department or the Foreign Service, and some to positions in areas of domestic service. The letters reflect the geographic growth of the nation, the expansion of government activity, and contemporary concepts of qualifications for government service.

The original records are arranged in 4- or 8-year blocks by presidential administration and thereunder alphabetically by the surname of the applicant or person recommended. The microfilm copies follow this arrangement, and descriptive pamphlets that include lists of applicants' names are available. Similar records for the presidency of George Washington are in the custody of the Manuscript Division of the Library of Congress.

Letters of Application and Recommendation During the Administration(s) of:

John Adams, 1797–1801. M406. 3 rolls. DP.
 Thomas Jefferson, 1801–1809. M418. 12 rolls. DP.
 James Madison, 1809–1817. M438. 8 rolls. DP.
 James Monroe, 1817–1825. M439. 19 rolls. DP.
 John Quincy Adams, 1825–1829. M531. 8 rolls. DP.
 Andrew Jackson, 1829–1837. M639. 27 rolls. DP.
 Martin Van Buren, William Henry Harrison, and John Tyler, 1837–1845. M687. 35 rolls. DP.
 James Polk, Zachary Taylor, and Millard Fillmore, 1845–1853. M873. 98 rolls. DP.
 Franklin Pierce and James Buchanan, 1853–1861. M967. 50 rolls. DP.
 Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson, 1861–1869. M650. 52 rolls. DP.
 Ulysses S. Grant, 1869–1877. M968. 69 rolls. DP.

Please see the descriptive pamphlets or the National Archives select catalog entitled Genealogical and Biographical Research [pp. 9–13] for roll lists of these publications. The roll lists are not included in part 4 of this catalog.

Administrative Records

Cashbook of the Department of State, 1785–1795. T904. 1 roll.

Daybook of the Department of State for Miscellaneous and Contingent Expenses, Feb. 1, 1798–Nov. 3, 1820. T903. 1 roll.

These two publications, T903 and T904, reproduce original account ledgers kept by the Department of State during its first 22 years. As the department took on increased responsibilities, expenditures on such items as books, office supplies, printing, and various personal services also increased. While the expenditures shown in T904 are almost exclusively administrative, the ledgers in T903 show a greater variety of disbursements, including the costs of establishing various consular and diplomatic posts overseas. Both publications are arranged chronologically.

Reports of Clerks and Bureau Officers of the Department of State, 1790–1911. M800. 8 rolls. DP.

In 1789 the chief clerk directly supervised the administrative clerks of the State Department and their operations, such as the drafting of diplomatic and consular instructions, the filing and recording of correspondence, the maintenance of a library and an archives, and the keeping of accounts. In 1833, Secretary of State Louis McLane reorganized the clerks into six bureaus, the two most important being the Diplomatic and Consular Bureaus.

The next major reorganization was not until 1870, when Secretary Hamilton Fish organized the 31 officers and clerks into nine bureaus, two agencies, a translator, and a telegraph operator. The new offices included two diplomatic bureaus, one for Europe, China, and Japan, and another one for Latin America and all other countries. In 1872 the Bureau of Indexes and Archives was added, and in 1874 the Bureau of Rolls and Library. Many documents reproduced in this publication contain records relating to the duties of the latter two bureaus. The publication also contains draft copies of the Outline of the Organization of Work of the Department of State, referring to the reorganization of the department in 1909 by Secretary Philander C. Knox.

The reports of the department's bureau officers (and of clerks, before 1833) to the Secretary of State regard matters affecting U.S. foreign relations, such as foreign claims, treaties, the activities of international commissions, questions of international law, and legislation for the Department of State and the Foreign Service.

The records in this publication are arranged chronologically into 12 separate volumes. Volumes 1-11 cover 1806-1911, while volume 1A covers 1790-1834. Within each volume the reports are arranged chronologically; however, some volumes overlap. The descriptive pamphlet for M800 contains a complete index of all 12 volumes.

Codebooks of the Department of State, 1867, 1876. T1171. 1 roll.

This microfilm publication contains two printed codebooks that give instructions and deciphering tables for ciphers adopted by the Department of State in 1867 and 1876. With the laying of the Atlantic cable and the advent of transcontinental telegraphy and its attendant cost, it was deemed necessary to communicate in code not only to maintain secrecy but also to economize. As a result, all U.S. diplomatic and consular telegrams were sent using these secret codes.

Before 1866, the department used a numeric code in which letters, as well as certain words and phrases, were assigned numbers from 1 to 1,600. This code often increased the length of messages, so in 1866 an alphabetical code was adopted in which letters, words, and phrases were assigned codewords, each codeword being one to three letters long. While this code decreased message length, it was determined that telegraph operators overseas, many of whom used different alphabets as well as languages, often made errors in the transmission of the messages. Therefore, in 1876 the department adopted a new code in which words and phrases were assigned numbers as well as English words. Words without special code translations, such as proper names, could be encoded using special spelling tables located at the end of the codebook. Using this code, any telegraph operator with a knowledge of Arabic numerals could easily key the message with a greatly reduced chance of error.

Each codebook begins with a detailed description of its use, followed by encoding and decoding tables and appendixes.

Records Relating to Special Agents

Special agents have been employed by Presidents and Secretaries of State since the ratification of the Constitution. They have negotiated and exchanged treaties, collected information, delivered ceremonial letters, taken testimony in foreign countries, mediated wars and international disputes, inspected U.S. consulates, and observed and reported on political conditions in other countries. During the 18th and 19th centuries, U.S. naval officers, acting as special agents, were often given special diplomatic missions along with their regular duties.

Despatches From Special Agents of the Department of State, 1794-1906. M37. 27 rolls. DP.

In these despatches, special agents report on their assignments, present their accounts, and enclose copies of pertinent documents and exhibits. They report on political conditions abroad, public opinion, and investigations of various kinds. Among the documents in this publication are the report of Joel R. Poinsett, U.S. envoy, entitled "Political State of Mexico," ca. 1827; "Journal of Journey to Japan," 1853-54, by James Morrow of the Department of Agriculture, a member of the U.S. Expedition to Japan led by Commodore Perry; a copy of a treaty of friendship and trade between Siam and the British East India Company; and several documents concerning U.S.-Hawaiian affairs, 1893.

This publication reproduces 51 volumes and unbound papers that are part of the State Department's diplomatic despatches. Despatches from each agent were filed separately and then bound into volumes in roughly chronological order. Within the records for each agent the despatches are also arranged chronologically. Occasionally, records for a particular agent appear in more than one volume. The National Archives has prepared and filmed notes at the start of each roll, giving the name of each agent along with the purpose of his mission and the dates of the despatches.

Correspondence Relating to the Filibustering Expedition Against the Spanish Government of Mexico, 1811-1816. T286. 1 roll.

During the War of 1812, Secretary of State James Monroe sent special agents into Louisiana and Texas (which was then a part of Spanish Mexico) on various unofficial missions. Some of these agents became involved in filibustering expeditions (unsanctioned invasions into foreign-held territories by U.S. citizens) to spread revolution and drive the Spanish out of northern Mexico. This publication contains letters (some in Spanish) sent to Monroe by early Mexican revolutionaries, such as Bernardo Gutierrez and Don Jose Alvarez de Toledo, who had been U.S. agents. Also included are letters from U.S. agents William Shaler (U.S. envoy in New Orleans) and Dr. John H. Robinson, who in 1813 was unofficially sent by Monroe to ask that the Spanish Governor of Northern Mexico, Nemecio Salcedo, do something about the armed bandits who were encroaching into U.S. territory. Robinson later began filibustering activities of his own. Letters from Telesforo de Orca, an envoy from the revolutionary government of Venezuela, and declarations from the revolutionary junta at Buenos Aires are also included. The letters are arranged in chronological order.

Journal of the Voyage of the U.S.S. Nonsuch up the Orinoco, July 11–August 24, 1819. M83. 1 roll.

This publication reproduces the 19-page journal of John N. Hambleton, acting chaplain of the U.S.S. John Adams, written while accompanying Captain Oliver Hazard Perry on a voyage up Venezuela's Orinoco River to Angostura (now Ciudad Bolívar). Because the John Adams was too large to navigate the Orinoco, the voyage was made in the Nonsuch, a small schooner.

Perry's mission was to ask Venezuela's new revolutionary government to stop giving license to privateers, who were posing a threat to U.S. commercial shipping. The Venezuelans supported privateers because their own fleet was too small to deal with the Spanish, with whom they were still at war for control of the area.

Hambleton's journal describes the geography and socio-economic conditions of Venezuela and gives brief character sketches of some of the leaders of the revolution (President Simon Bolívar was in Colombia during Perry's visit). It also describes Perry's death of yellow fever, contracted on the journey back from Angostura.

Records of Special Agents for Securing the Florida Archives, 1819–1835. T1212. 6 rolls.

After Spain ceded Florida to the United States in 1821, the Spanish Captain-General of Florida moved all the records of the Spanish government to Cuba. In 1830 the State Department began sending special agents to negotiate the transfer of the records from Cuba to the United States, as it was believed that these records could be of value to newly installed U.S. officials and settlers.

This publication contains despatches sent by agents Richard K. Call, William Shaler, R. J. Cleveland, Jeremy Robinson, and Nicholas P. Trist, as well as Robinson's journal (rolls 4–5). Other correspondence relating to the cession of the Floridas, with copies of the treaty and indexes to the documents, is on roll 6. The despatches are grouped by agent and thereunder arranged chronologically.

Records of the Department of State Special Interrogation Mission to Germany, 1945–1946. M679. 3 rolls.

In 1945 the Department of State sent Dewitt C. Poole and a group of special agents to Germany to interrogate prominent Nazi prisoners of war. This mission interrogated some 73 Nazi leaders. Reports concerning 49 of these subjects, including Hermann Goering and Joachim von Ribbentrop, were declassified and included in this publication (more reports may have been declassified and made available to researchers since these records were filmed). Roll 1 contains an index of all 73 subjects and reports (in alphabetical order by name of subject) from Backe through Haushofer; roll 2, Hencke–Neubacher; roll 3, Niebuhr–Waslimont.

Miscellaneous Records

Copybooks of George Washington's Correspondence With Secretaries of State, 1789–1796. M570. 1 roll. DP.

Copies of letters received by George Washington contained in letter books labeled "State Department Correspondence" were once part of the Washington papers in the care of the Department of State. Unlike the rest of the Washington papers, they were not transferred to the Library of Congress because they contained copies of correspondence between Washington and his Secretaries of State (Jay, Jefferson, Randolph, and Pickering). The three volumes were later transferred to the National Archives.

This correspondence shows how Washington concerned himself with details in the young and relatively uncomplicated government. One Secretary writes about the "neatness and simplicity" of the silver dollar. Other letters reflect on plans for enforcing peace in the Barbary States (1790); the jailing of a post rider who became involved in a quarrel while carrying official mail from Fort Cumberland; the itinerary of Washington's visit to Savannah (1791), with instructions to secretaries to guide them during his absence; a report of 1795 on the operation of the U.S. mint, suggesting legislative action to curtail theft of equipment and metal; and other subjects.

Most of these papers are copies of documents that are in the "Domestic Letters" and "Miscellaneous Letters" series. The volumes are in chronological order with an index in the first volume (roll 1).

"War of 1812 Papers" of the Department of State, 1789–1815. M588. 7 rolls. DP.

In time of war the duties of the Department of State have always been expanded. During the War of 1812 an act of Congress authorized the Secretary of State to issue commissions and letters of marque and reprisal to private armed vessels, permitting them to "cruise against enemies of the United States." Owners of merchant vessels filed applications for the commissions with the State Department in Washington or with collectors of customs in individual ports. These privateers were allowed to keep booty from captured vessels, thus making such activities highly profitable as well as legal. Copies or abstracts of the originals of these commissions were then sent to the department.

During the war, the department also issued permits to aliens allowing them to leave the United States. It received reports from U.S. marshals about aliens and prisoners of war in their districts, from collectors of customs and State Department agents about the impressment of seamen, and from the department's "Secret Agent" about the movements of the British in the Chesapeake Bay area. The department was also responsible for negotiating the treaty at the end of the war (see M36 below for records connected with the Treaty of Ghent).

The records are arranged in individual volumes on each roll, each volume on a separate subject (see the roll list for M588 in part 4).

Records of Negotiations Connected With the Treaty of Ghent, 1813–1815. M36. 2 rolls.

This publication contains despatches from the U.S. treaty negotiating mission at Ghent, which included John Quincy Adams, James A. Bayard (former Senator from Delaware), Albert Gallatin (Secretary of the Treasury), Henry Clay (Speaker of the House of Representatives), and Jonathan Russell (U.S. Minister to Sweden and Norway). Roll 1 includes notes and letters from the various members of the mission, as well as a copy of the Treaty of Ghent, signed December 24, 1814, which ended the War of 1812. A copy of a treaty signed a few months later normalizing trade relations with Great Britain is also included. Roll 2 contains some letters sent between July and November, 1814, and a prospect of the treaty, dated November 1814.

Miscellaneous Documents Relating to Reciprocity Negotiations of the Department of State, 1848-1854, 1884-1885, 1891-1892. T493. 1 roll.

These documents relate to various treaty negotiations between the United States and other countries that were intended to create a more equitable system of tariffs, duties, and customs regulations. The records are divided into two separate volumes.

The first volume covers 1848-54 and relates to negotiations for a treaty of reciprocity between the United States and Great Britain to ease restrictions on trade between the United States and Canada. The records include lists of goods to be admitted into the United States and Canada at reduced or no duty, printed statistics of Nova Scotia products, statistical tables of Canadian fur and coal exports, a table of duties collected during 1851 at selected U.S. ports bordering Canada, and a petition to Secretary of State Daniel Webster from the citizens of Gloucester, MA, asking for protection of fishing rights. There are also notes to the British legation and copies of the proposed treaty, one of which was submitted to President Millard Fillmore and contains his notes in the margins.

The first part of volume 2, 1884-85, concerns trade between the United States and the British West Indies. The second part, 1891-92, relates to negotiations between the United States and Austria-Hungary, Costa Rica, the Danish West Indies, France, Germany, possessions of Great Britain (Canada, British Guiana, Jamaica, and the British West Indies), Guatemala, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Spain, and Venezuela. The records primarily include lists of goods slated for reduced or no duty, statistical tables of exports, and other notes and correspondence. Records for some countries also include drafts of treaties.

Records of the Department of State Relating to Guano Islands, 1852-1912. M974. 7 rolls. DP.

In 1852, an act of Congress authorized U.S. citizens to occupy uninhabited and unclaimed islands in the Pacific and the Caribbean for the purpose of extracting deposits of guano (bird excrement) to be processed and sold as fertilizer. Included in this publication are notices of discovery, deeds, assignments of interest, charts, newspaper clippings, and other documents received by the Department of State supporting claims by private citizens and companies to these so-called "guano islands."

Rolls 1-6 are arranged alphabetically by island name. Roll 7 contains copies of letters sent, in chronological order, by the Department of State regarding bonds of guano companies. An index listing the names of each island is included in roll 1.

Papers Relating to the Cession of Alaska, 1856-1867; Enclosures 2 and 3 to Despatch 2115, Dated Dec. 2, 1936, From the U.S. Embassy in the Soviet Union. T495. 1 roll.

These records are typescripts of letters, despatches, and memorandums from the Russian archives relating to the Alaska Purchase of 1867. They were turned over to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow after the United States recognized the Soviet Union in 1934; the records were released on December 2, 1936.

The documents were received in two enclosures, numbered 2 and 3. Enclosure 2 consists of 45 documents referred to as annexes. A list of these annexes, appearing at the start of the roll, indicates the original language of the documents and briefly describes each one. Annexes 4-8, 10-14, 19-43, and 45 are in French; the rest are in Russian. English translations follow each document. Enclosure 3 consists of photostatic copies of the originals of eight of the documents presented in typescript and a "Statement of Value of Property of the Russian American Company."

The Alaska Treaty*, by David Hunter Miller, Department of State. T1024. 1 roll.

This publication reproduces a draft manuscript of a history of the treaty signed with Russia ceding Alaska to the United States. It was prepared by David Hunter Miller, editor of the "Treaties of the Department of State," for the department's edition of Treaties and Other International Acts of the United States of America.

A table of contents appears first, followed by the text of the treaty in English and in French. In addition to writing on the background of the treaty, Miller also gives the 45 annexes of the papers from the Russian archives that make up T495 (see above) and lists the Russian-American Company records useful in studying the treaty.

Minutes of Treaty Conferences Between the United States and Japanese Representatives, and Treaty Drafts, March 11-July 22, 1872. T119. 1 roll.

This treaty effectively normalized relations between the United States and Japan (although several Japanese ports still remained closed to U.S. shipping). It was basically an extension of the treaty signed by Commodore Perry in 1858. The microfilm includes letters received from the U.S. representatives, minutes taken during the treaty negotiations, and several drafts of the treaty signed in July of 1872.

Despatches Received by the Department of State From the U.S. Commission to Central and South America, July 14, 1884-December 26, 1885. T908. 1 roll.

In 1884 the Department of State appointed a four-member commission to "ascertain and report upon the best modes of securing more intimate international and commercial relations between the United States and the Several Countries of Central and South America." The commission was sent to investigate the causes of an unfavorable balance of trade between the United States and the nations of Latin America. They left the United States in September 1884 and returned in August 1885 after their ship wrecked less than 3 days out of Rio de Janeiro.

This microfilm publication includes letters of acceptance from the commissioners, despatches written and signed by William E. Curtis, secretary of the commission, and newspaper clippings mentioning the commission and its activities.

Records of the World War I Period

Records of the Department of State Relating to World War I and Its Termination, 1914–1929. M367. 518 rolls. DP.

This microfilm publication contains reproductions of records from the State Department decimal file relating to World War I and the peace negotiations and Armistice that ended it. Most of the documents are instructions to and despatches from diplomatic and consular officials. Notes between the Department of State and foreign diplomatic representatives in the United States are also included, along with memorandums prepared by officials of the department and correspondence with officials of other government departments and with private firms and persons. The subjects specifically covered include neutrality, neutral commerce, enemy property, prisoners of war, civil prisoners and enemy noncombatants, illegal and inhumane warfare, hospital ships, military and civilian observers, peace negotiations, and the Armistice.

Since the war began as a regional conflict between Austria and Serbia, documents relating to the war were filed under the decimal file heading "763.72," Political Relations Between Austria and Serbia. Documents were further divided by subject and arranged, with a few exceptions, in chronological order within each subject. Each document was, in turn, given an individual document number. (See the description of the decimal file in part 2 for a more detailed explanation of the decimal file system.)

The records are arranged in decimal file number order. Rolls 1–11 contain "purport lists" of the documents, also arranged in decimal file order, which are brief abstracts of the documents contained in the original records. Some documents were still security-classified at the time these records were filmed and, therefore, were not included. As a result, not all of the documents listed in the abstracts are included in this publication.

Correspondence of Secretary of State Bryan With President Wilson, 1913–1915. T841. 4 rolls.

These four rolls contain four volumes of correspondence between Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan and Woodrow Wilson during the first 3 years of Wilson's first term. Each roll contains one complete volume. The letters, arranged chronologically, range over topics that include political appointments, the Mexican Revolution, China and Japan, Nicaragua, the San Francisco Panama-Pacific Exposition, and the beginnings of World War I in Europe.

Personal and Confidential Letters From Secretary of State Lansing to President Wilson, 1915–1918. M743. 1 roll. DP.

Robert Lansing's letters to President Woodrow Wilson date from shortly after Lansing's appointment as Secretary of State on June 9, 1915, to the time of the Paris Peace Conference of 1918–19. The letters report on conversations with ministers of foreign nations, despatches received from U.S. diplomatic and consular officers, notes to various foreign governments, applications for appointment, and administrative matters. They deal with U.S. foreign relations, special missions, proposed treaties, and policy changes. Among particular subjects are German submarine warfare; U.S. entrance into World War I; diplomatic relations with Russia, Mexico, Great Britain, and Japan; and an embargo on the shipment of arms to Mexico.

These records were originally filed under the heading "Miscellaneous Correspondence and Memoranda of the Secretary of State" and were kept separate from the central files of the department. The letters are arranged in chronological order and marked "personal," "private," or "confidential." The volume contains an alphabetical name and subject index.

Records of the World War II and Postwar Periods

Records of the Department of State Relating to World War II, 1939–1945. M982. 252 rolls. DP.

This publication reproduces records from the decimal file from 1939 through 1945 that relate to World War II. Most of the records consist of diplomatic and consular despatches, some accompanied by enclosures. The records include notes exchanged between the Department of State and foreign diplomatic representatives in the United States, memorandums prepared by State Department officials, and correspondence with officials of other government departments and private individuals.

These documents relate to other records of the decimal file, some of which are included in other microfilm publications. Many also relate to other records of World War II dealing with neutrality, neutral and enemy commerce, enemy property, prisoners of war, civilian prisoners, illegal and inhumane warfare, hospital ships, military observers, and termination of the war.

Using the decimal file system, all war-related documents were indexed in file 740.0011 EW (European War), or 740.0011 PW (Pacific War), in which "7" refers to Political Relations between States, "40" refers to Europe, "00" refers to the world in general, and "11" refers to the subject of War. The Pacific war was considered an extension of the European war at the time, and was therefore given the same decimal file number. Because file numbers were assigned by date of receipt, the documents are not in chronological order according to the date they were created.

Records that were security-classified at the time of publication are not included, but since that time many records may have been declassified and made available to researchers.

Records of the Office of European Affairs, 1934–1947. M1244. 18 rolls. DP.

The Office of European Affairs was one of a group of specialized divisional offices of the Department of State in Washington, DC, which were responsible for overseeing and coordinating the department's activities in various regions of the world. Various files created between 1934 and 1947 in the Office of European Affairs are included in this publication.

The files of John D. Hickerson, deputy director (1944–47), consist of memorandums arranged chronologically (rolls 1–3), correspondence arranged alphabetically (rolls 4–6), and miscellaneous files arranged randomly by subject (rolls 7–8). The files of H. Freeman Matthews, director (1944–47), include correspondence arranged alphabetically, memorandums arranged by type of memorandum and thereunder chronologically, and miscellaneous files, reports, statements, and documents arranged chronologically (rolls 9–10). The reference subject files for 1940–47 (rolls 11–18), are arranged alphabetically by subject (most subject headings refer specifically to names of individual countries).

Documents in these files that were classified at the time of publication were removed and replaced by withdrawal notices, which identify the missing documents and the reason for their removal.

State Department Documents of the Interdivisional Country and Area Committee, 1943–1946. T1221. 6 rolls.

These documents consist of a series of committee reports that contain analyses of problems facing Europe and Asia after World War II and related recommendations for action. Many of the reports concern the surrender of Germany and Japan and the problems of disarmament, occupation, political reorganization, and frontier adjustment. Other reports deal with the treatment of liberated and enemy states, postwar political problems in Latin America, and economic problems.

Each roll of microfilm begins with a complete list of the documents that gives the Country and Area Committee ("CAC") number, the subject, and the date. The reports are arranged in order by CAC number.

Minutes of Meetings of the Interdivisional Area Committee on the Far East, 1943–1946. T1197. 1 roll.

The Interdivisional Area Committee on the Far East was a special committee established along with the Country and Area Committee to analyze specific problems relating to U.S. policy in the Far East toward the end of World War II. The committee concentrated on proposed U.S. actions in the region after Japan's eventual surrender.

This publication contains minutes of meetings in which the committee discussed such topics as the future status of Japanese-occupied European colonies in the Far East, the composition of invasion and occupation forces to be sent into Japan, the future status of the Japanese emperor and various organs of the Japanese government during the occupation, the future status of Japanese nationals and their property in areas occupied by Japan, and what forms of government to establish or recognize in such countries as Korea, Formosa, Indochina, Thailand, and Outer Mongolia.

Most of these documents were originally classified by the department for security reasons; documents that were classified at the time of publication have not been included. The minutes are arranged chronologically.

State Department Documents of the Post-War Programs Committee, 1944. T1222. 4 rolls.

The Post-War Programs Committee was set up in 1944 to deal with such war-related problems as terms of surrender, occupation, displaced persons, minorities, the treatment of liberated states, foreign petroleum policy, and reconstruction financing. These documents consist of committee reports on these problems and recommendations on military collaboration with other American republics, the establishment of an advisory council on postwar foreign policy, the formation of an international organization, and instructions to the U.S. delegates to the 26th session of the International Labor Organization.

Each of the four rolls of microfilm begins with a list of the documents; the list provides the Post-War Committee ("PWC") number, its title, and the date. The documents are arranged in order by PWC number.

Policy Planning Staff Numbered Papers 1–63, 1947–1949. M1171. 71 cards (microfiche).

The Policy Planning Staff was established by the State Department to study major world political issues following World War II. Its purpose was to provide the Secretary of State with reports examining various problems in detail and specifying possible U.S. responses. These papers were numbered in sequence as they were submitted. They deal with a wide variety of global postwar policy issues, including reconstruction, geopolitical reorganization, the new balance of power, relations with newly created governments, and the spread of communism into Eastern Europe and the Far East.

Most of the microfiche cards in this publication contain one complete report; however, particularly large reports are on more than one card. The reports were filmed in numerical sequence.

Palestine Reference Files of Dean Rusk and Robert McClintock, 1947–1949. M1175. 12 rolls. DP.

This two-part publication consists of correspondence, memorandums, telegrams, drafts and copies of position papers, and other materials relating to Palestine. The first part, the Palestine Reference "Book" of Dean Rusk, covers the period from October 1947 to April 1949 and is filmed on rolls 1–7. Dean Rusk accumulated these papers while he was director of the Office of Special Political Affairs (March 1947–January 1948), director of the Office of United Nations Affairs (January 1948–February 1949), and Assistant Secretary of State for United Nations Affairs (February–April 1949).

The second part, the Palestine Reference "File" of Robert McClintock, covers the period from January 1947 to December 1948 and is filmed on rolls 8–12. McClintock accumulated these records while he was special assistant to the director of the Offices of Special Political Affairs and United Nations Affairs. Roll 12 contains a separate folder, dated October 1948–January 1949, of documents that relate to the proposed establishment of an international police force for Jerusalem.

The records in both parts are arranged chronologically.

Marshall/Lovett Memorandums to President Truman, 1947-1948. M1135. 3 rolls. DP.

This microfilm publication reproduces carbon copies of memorandums, dated April 1947 to December 1948, sent to President Truman by Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett. The Executive Secretariat of the State Department maintained these carbon copies as a reading file. The memorandums are arranged chronologically.

Following the war, there was a general increase in the number of Foreign Service officers. The memorandums contain recommendations to the President from Marshall and Lovett for appointments and promotions, as well as biographical profiles. Some recommendations concern the composition of U.S. delegations to international conferences and commissions.

Trade and Intelligence Reports*Intelligence Reports, 1941-1961. M1221. Approximately 9,000 cards (microfiche).

These reports were written by the Research and Analysis Branch, originally part of the Office of Strategic Services (OSS). When the OSS was abolished in 1945, the records were transferred to the Bureau of Intelligence and Research in the Department of State. This organization studied and reported on virtually all subjects concerning international relations and the internal affairs of other countries. The studies they produced deal with both general and specific issues and cover political, military, economic, cultural, and social topics.

Numbers were given to the reports as they were assigned, with the exception of updates and revisions of previous reports (for example, the eighth update of the report numbered "6251" would be numbered "6251.8"). The reports, arranged in numerical order from 1 to 8518.2, are filmed on microfiche cards. Most of the cards contain one complete report; however, larger reports are on more than one card.

The Diplomatic Branch of the National Archives has a card index to the reports, arranged by general subject or by country. Although the index is unpublished, information from it may be obtained by writing to the Diplomatic Branch, National Archives and Records Administration, Washington, DC 20408.

Consular Trade Reports, 1943-1950. M238. 681 rolls. 16mm.

One of the primary duties of U.S. consuls abroad has been to write reports on trade and economic conditions in their consular districts. These reports are received by the Department of State, after which they are rated, edited, and published by the Department of Commerce. The reports in this microfilm publication deal with such topics as imports and exports, manufacturing, prices, shipping and railways, banking, and trade restrictions in various areas throughout the world during the postwar era. Some of the reports were "required" (i.e. written at the instruction of the department) while others were written on a "voluntary" basis. Some of the reports are copies of originals and were placed in the decimal file because they were considered to be of particularly high interest.

Originally arranged chronologically, the reports were rearranged alphabetically by name of consular post for microfilming. Within the records for each post the documents are arranged chronologically.

Records of the Foreign Service Posts of the Department of State (Record Group 84)

Record Group 84 contains records kept by various U.S. legations, embassies, and consulates. They consist of despatches to and instructions from the Department of State, notes to and from officials and representatives of foreign governments, letters from U.S. citizens traveling abroad, and miscellaneous official memorandums and correspondence.

The records filmed on the following microfilm publications reflect the differences in filing procedures at each legation or consulate (see the roll-by-roll list of each publication in part 4). Generally, however, records filed before 1913 are arranged by type of correspondence and thereunder chronologically.

Selected Records of United States Legations and Embassies*Selected Records of the U.S. Legation in:

Chile, 1893-1905. M20. 14 rolls.
China, 1849-1931. T898. 20 rolls.

Japan, 1855-1912. T400. 94 rolls.
Paraguay, 1861-1907. T693. 5 rolls.
Peru, 1828-1912. T724. 88 rolls.

Selected Records of U.S. Consular Posts*Selected Records of the U.S. Consulate in:

Bangkok, Siam, 1856-1912. T403. 14 rolls.
Bombay, India, 1894-1912. T307. 7 rolls.
Callao-Lima, Peru, 1825-1912. T781. 73 rolls.
Kunming, China, 1922-1928. T402. 19 rolls.
Madras, India, 1908-1912. T308. 8 rolls.

Records of Interdepartmental and Intradepartmental Committees (State Department) (Record Group 353)

During and after World War II, more than 100 committees and subcommittees were created within the State Department to deal with problems created by the war and to develop plans, policies, and programs for the postwar period.

Records from these committees, now in Record Group 353, were organized and filed separately from the central files of the department, using a different filing system.

State-War-Navy Coordinating Committee (SWNCC) and State-Army-Navy-Air Force Coordinating Committee (SANACC) Decimal Subject Files, 1944-1949. M1195. 12 rolls.

The State-War-Navy Coordinating Committee (SWNCC) held its first meeting on December 19, 1944, in the State Department Building in Washington. It was formed for the purpose of "obtaining for the State Department advice on politico-military matters and of coordinating the views of the three departments on matters in which all had a common interest, particularly those involving foreign policy and relations with foreign nations." Members of the committee included representatives of the Departments of State, War, and the Navy.

In 1946 the Cabinet was reorganized, and the committee was renamed the State-Army-Navy-Air Force Coordinating Committee (SANACC). Once the Axis powers were defeated, the duties of this committee and its several subcommittees were broadened to include practically all policy planning for the occupation of Germany and Japan.

M1195 contains despatches, directives, reports, memorandums, instructions, and other documents produced by this committee from its inception in 1944 to its dissolution in June 1947, and also attachments to certain records dated as late as 1949. These records were filed according to a decimal system that was unrelated to the central decimal file system, and they are reproduced in numerical order according to this system. Near the beginning of roll 1 is a brief history of the committee and an outline of its organization, including the various subcommittees.

Minutes of Meetings of the State-War-Navy Coordinating Committee (SWNCC), 1944-1947. T1194. 1 roll.

This microfilm publication contains, in chronological order, minutes of the meetings of SWNCC/SANACC. Minutes for each meeting contain paraphrased condensations of the discussions, giving the numbers of reports and documents that were considered. As a result, T1194 can serve as a finding aid to the documents filed in numerical order in M1195.

Records of the Subcommittee for the Far East, 1945-1948. T1205. 14 rolls.

The Subcommittee for the Far East originally began as an ad hoc committee of SWNCC. It was formed to study problems relating to the breakup of the Japanese Empire at the end of World War II and the future status of nations and people formerly under Japanese control. With the surrender of Japan, it became a full-fledged subcommittee, responsible for forming strategy on all aspects of postwar policy relating to the Far East, especially Japan, Korea, and China. The records in this publication include reports, instructions, and memorandums concerning a wide variety of topics centering on the occupation, disarmament, concessions, reconstitution, and reconstruction of Japan and its former dominions.

These documents were originally arranged according to the SWNCC/SANACC decimal classification system. Later they were rearranged in numerical order according to the subcommittee's own sequential numbering of the documents and placed in boxes numbered 95-108. Each roll of this microfilm publication reproduces one complete box.

Minutes of Meetings of the Subcommittee for the Far East, 1945-1947. T1198. 1 roll.

This publication contains minutes of meetings held by the SWNCC/SANACC Subcommittee for the Far East. The records are arranged in chronological order. These documents give paraphrased condensations of the discussions at each meeting and provide document numbers of the reports and documents discussed, making this a possible finding aid to the records reproduced on T1198.

Records of the Secretary of State's Staff Committee, 1944-1947. M1054. 5 rolls. DP.

The Secretary of State's Staff Committee, formed by Departmental Order 1301 of December 20, 1944, was the coordinating committee for all of the other committees active in the State Department during the terms of Secretaries Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., and James F. Byrnes. It replaced both the Policy Committee and the Post War Programs Committee (see T1222). Its members included the Secretary of State, the under secretaries and assistant secretaries, the legal advisor, and the special assistant for international organization and security affairs. As the upper echelon of the Department of State, they became the final review and advisory body for all foreign policy and international relations. The records of this committee relate to both the formation and the conduct of U.S. foreign policy during the termination of World War II, the making of peace, and the beginnings of the postwar era.

Although the Staff Committee was disbanded by Secretary of State George C. Marshall in June 1947, attachments to some of the documents contained in the Staff Committee's records are dated as late as 1948.

An agenda was printed before each regularly scheduled meeting of the Staff Committee. A compilation of these agendas is included on roll 1. In addition to the regular meetings, the secretary called about 70 emergency meetings to deal with various crises. Agendas for these meetings were not printed in advance. For this reason, an alphabetical subject index to the documents of the committee is also provided on roll 1. The index gives numbers for related documents under each subject heading. The documents themselves are arranged in three groups: Staff Committee documents, minutes of meetings, and summaries of action and directives. The summaries that make up the third group are further divided into three groups: daily summaries, labeled "SC/R," weekly summaries, labeled "SC/W," and monthly summaries, labeled "SC/M." All of these groups and subgroups are numbered sequentially and arranged in order on the microfilm (see the roll list for M1054 in part 4).

Records of Boundary and Claims Commissions and Arbitrations (Record Group 76)

Record Group 76 was established for segregated files relating to international boundaries, claims, and arbitrations received from the Department of State. These files deal with such issues as treaties and conventions defining the boundaries of the United States with other nations or territories; claims of U.S. citizens against foreign governments and claims of foreign nationals against the government of the United States; the commissions and arbitrations established to settle claims; and arbitrations in which the United States was either an arbitrator or a party in the dispute.

Records Relating to the First Northwest Boundary Survey Commission, 1853-1869. T606. 4 rolls.

In 1853 the Department of State appointed a group of astronomers and surveyors led by Archibald Campbell to begin surveying and demarcating the northwest boundary between the United States and Canada, taking in the entire 49th parallel between Lake Superior and the Pacific. During several major expeditions, the commissioners had to deal with hostile Indian tribes, inadequate supplies and mail facilities, and other difficulties. The commission also became involved in the dispute over possession of San Juan Island in the Vancouver Bay region, as well as several smaller islands in the same area.

This microfilm publication contains letters sent and received by Campbell, which are arranged by type of correspondence and thereunder chronologically.

Records Relating to Claims Against Brazil Under the Convention of 1849. T1187. 19 rolls.

A convention was signed by the United States and Brazil on January 27, 1849, to ensure compensation for claims made against Brazil by owners of U.S. merchant ships seized or damaged by Brazilian authorities. The claims records reproduced here (rolls 1-7) date from 1850 to 1852. Roll 1 contains a letter book consisting of summaries of the claims proceedings. The entries in the book list the claim, the claimant's name, the date the memorial was filed, a list of exhibits, and the judgment of the Claims Commissioner. An index and a table of contents precede the letter book. The index lists the names of claimants and vessels in alphabetical order and the page number of the summary in the letter book. The table of contents is arranged by claim number and lists the name of the vessel or claimant and the letter book page span.

Most of the claims deal with complaints by U.S. commercial and whaling interests that their property had been illegally taxed or confiscated during the 1820s and 1830s. The claim supported by the largest amount of evidence is that of Joseph Ray, U.S. consul at Pernambuco (Recife) in 1817-19 and 1837-42, who was imprisoned by Brazilian authorities on charges that he had actively aided an unsuccessful rebellion against the new imperial government of Dom Pedro I in 1823. Rolls 8-17 reproduce Ray's account books, ledgers, and other business records, used as evidence to refute Brazil's assertion that his mercantile operation was defunct at the time of his arrest. These records provide a great deal of information concerning market conditions in Brazil during the 1820s.

This publication also reproduces a card index to the case files for undocketed claims (roll 18) and miscellaneous records of the commissioner (roll 19). The index is arranged alphabetically by the name of the vessel or claimant and refers to envelope and folder numbers. The envelopes and folders immediately follow the index.

Records of and Relating to the C.S.S. Florida, 1862-1864. T716. 4 rolls.

During the Union's naval blockade of the South during the Civil War, the Confederate Navy surreptitiously purchased the British Warship Oreto and renamed it the Florida, with the intention of using it to run the blockade and to sink as many Union ships as possible in the process. The Union considered the sale of the Oreto to be a violation by the British of neutrality agreements signed before the war. The Florida put out to sea from Liverpool in 1862 with a crew consisting primarily of Europeans, who were not told the nature of the ship's mission. When the Florida docked in Nassau and took on large amounts of ammunition for her guns, many members of the crew mutinied and were taken under the protection of the Captain of the H.M.S. Greyhound. The Florida then went on to do millions of dollars in damage to Union shipping, along with other British-built Confederate cruisers such as the C.S.S. Alabama and the C.S.S. Shenandoah.

Ship's logs and other records from the Florida, as well as affidavits from members of the crew, were used as evidence in a claim for compensation made against Great Britain by the United States shortly after the war. These records, along with some court-martial transcripts from mutiny trials convened by Confederate authorities, are reproduced in this microfilm publication. Rolls 1-3 contain captain's, engineer's, and medical logs, and also the court-martial records. Roll 4 contains paymaster receipts, crew lists, official ship's papers, and statements from crew members taken after the Nassau mutiny.

Records of International Conferences, Commissions, and Expositions (Record Group 43)

Since 1826 the United States has participated in numerous international congresses, conferences, committees, commissions, and expositions of a multilateral nature. This participation has usually been under the auspices of the Department of State, as authorized by Congress. The conferences have been held to negotiate such international problems as world peace, trade, communications, safety at sea, emigration and immigration, exchange of currency, and medical and financial aid.

Other departments have participated in some conferences and commissions. The resulting records are usually in the general records of those departments or among the records of their subordinate agencies.

Records of the Department of State Relating to the First Panama Congress, 1825-1827. M662. 1 roll. DP.

In 1823, Simon Bolivar of Venezuela proposed a conference of all major American states to set up a mutual defense treaty against European encroachment. The United States sent two envoys to the negotiations, which convened in July 1825. One of the envoys died en route, and the other did not reach Panama until after the conference had adjourned.

Included in this publication are papers and correspondences of John Sergeant (the surviving envoy) and a copy of the treaty, which was signed (but not ratified) by representatives of Greater Colombia, Peru, Mexico, the Central American Provinces, and Great Britain.

Records of the Department of State Relating to the Paris Peace Commission, 1898. T954. 3 rolls.

This publication contains documents related to the Treaty of Paris, signed on December 10, 1898, which brought an end to the Spanish-American War, ended Spanish control of Cuba, and turned over the Philippines to the United States. Roll 1 contains protocols and terms of the negotiations; roll 2 contains instructions to the commission sent by the State Department; and roll 3 contains copies of telegrams sent and received by the commission. The documents in roll 1 are written in both Spanish and English; the written text appears in both languages side by side on most of the documents.

Records of the American Delegation, U.S.-U.S.S.R. Joint Commission on Korea, and Records Relating to the United Nations Temporary Commission on Korea (UNTCOK), 1945-1948. M1243. 23 rolls. DP.

The U.S.-U.S.S.R. Joint Commission on Korea (UNTCOK) was established by the Moscow Agreement, made on December 27, 1945, at the Moscow Foreign Ministers Conference. The purpose of the commission was to study Korean political and economic conditions and make recommendations for the formation of a provisional government for all of Korea. The commission first met at Seoul, Korea, on March 20, 1946. By July 1947 the negotiations were deadlocked, primarily over the question of which Korean political parties should be allowed to participate in the provisional government. On September 17, 1947, the United States laid the question of Korean independence before the United Nations General Assembly, which established the United Nations Temporary Commission on Korea (UNTCOK) on November 14, 1947.

The first 16 rolls of this microfilm publication contain records of the U.S. delegation to the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Joint Commission on Korea. Rolls 17-23 consist of records relating to UNTCOK. Although the United States was not represented on UNTCOK, some members of the U.S. delegation to the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Joint Commission on Korea participated in a Liaison and Election Committee established by the U.S. military command to coordinate relations between UNTCOK and the U.S. Armed Forces in Korea.

The records in this publication consist of minutes of meetings, press releases, joint communiques, correspondence, memorandums, airmails, telegrams, reports, studies, agendas, texts of speeches, and background materials. Each of the two parts is arranged partially by type of record and partially by subject. Documents that were still classified at the time of publication are not included.

Records of the American Commission to Negotiate Peace (Record Group 256)

The American Commission to Negotiate Peace was formed in 1918 when President Woodrow Wilson appointed Col. E. M. House, Secretary of State Robert Lansing, Henry White, and Tasker A. Bliss as commissioners plenipotentiary to accompany him to Paris for the negotiations ending World War I.

Since the U.S. negotiators needed a great deal of information on a wide range of issues, Wilson asked Col. House to organize a large group of experts, known as the "Inquiry," to study problems and issues facing the world following the war. This group submitted to the commission hundreds of reports, which have been filmed separately as "Inquiry Documents" (see M1107, below). Many members of the "Inquiry" later joined the Secretariat of the Commission.

General Records of the American Commission to Negotiate Peace, 1918-1931. M820. 563 rolls. DP.

The commission's central files contain correspondence to and from the commissioners; minutes and reports of various committees, councils, commissions, field missions, and plenary sessions; minutes of meetings of the Conference of Ambassadors, 1920-31; and memorandums, publications, pamphlets, maps, and personnel records. Since Wilson and Lansing decided many matters of general policy while attending the negotiations in Paris, some of the records have little or no relation to matters discussed at the peace conference.

The Department of State did not begin to arrange these documents until 1930, when it was decided that the commission's files should be arranged using a slightly modified version of the decimal file classification system. Arranging and indexing the files took nearly 7 years.

Roll 1 contains the "key" to the records, which gives a description of how the documents were arranged and explains the organization of the peace conference itself. Also on roll 1 are annexes to the "key," which serve as finding aids for certain types of documents. The arrangers also produced purport lists, arranged in file order, which contain the name of the sender of each document, the date the document was sent or received, and a brief description of the contents. These purport lists are reproduced on rolls 2-26.

"Inquiry Documents" (Special Reports and Studies), 1917-1919. M1107. 47 rolls.

These reports and studies were submitted to the American Commission to Negotiate Peace between 1917 and 1919 by the "Inquiry," the group organized by Col. E. M. House before the peace negotiations to provide information on world politics to the commissioners. These special studies were written by experts in such areas as history, political science, economics, international law, and political geography. They produced 1,000 reports, which touch upon virtually every major question of international diplomacy of any interest to the peace negotiators.

The reports are arranged in sequence based on the date they were submitted. Roll 1 begins with two indexes to the reports: a numerical register giving titles and brief descriptions of the contents of each, and a subject index giving titles and document numbers, with general subjects listed before individual countries and areas.

Records of Former Russian Agencies (Record Group 261)

This record group contains records of agencies and charter companies of the Imperial Russian government. Besides records of the Russian-American Company acquired after the Alaska Purchase, RG 261 also contains records of Russian consulates, 1862-1922, and records of the wartime Russian Supply Committee, 1914-22, acquired by the State Department after the overthrow of the Imperial government.

Records of the Russian-American Company, 1802-1867. M11. 77 rolls. DP.

Czar Paul I created the Russian-American Company on July 8, 1799. He granted it de facto political authority and a monopoly of trade in Russia's North American possessions, including Alaska. Under the convention by which Russia ceded Alaska to the United States in the Alaska Purchase of 1867, the company was to transfer "any Government archives, papers and documents" relating to the Alaska Territory to the United States.

The records that were acquired in the purchase include letters received from the company's board of directors in St. Petersburg (rolls 1-25); letters sent to the board (rolls 26-65); logs of company ships (rolls 66-76), and journals of explorations of the territory (roll 77). The letters, numbered consecutively in chronological order, relate to such topics as furs, fisheries, farming, boundaries, native tribes, transportation, and religion. The logs and journals were kept by company ship commanders while in Alaskan waters. All of the documents are handwritten in Russian; no translation has been made.

National Archives Collection of Foreign Records Seized, 1941- (Record Group 242)

During and after World War II and the Korean war, many seized records were sent to the United States. Seized German records that had no security restrictions were returned to the Federal Republic of Germany after historically valuable documents were microfilmed by the National Archives in cooperation with other organizations. This record group consists of records that have been separately maintained and that have not been assimilated into the National Archives Collection of World War II War Crimes Records (Record Group 238) or other record groups.

Virtually all of the hundreds of thousands of microfilmed documents among the captured German records in RG 242 are in German without accompanying translations.

Records of the German Foreign Office Received by the Department of State. T120. 5,206 rolls.

Many of these records date from the Nazi era, 1933-45. State papers of German diplomats, policy memorandums, reports, and press releases are included, in no particular order.

Records of the German Foreign Office Received by the Department of State From St. Antony's College. T136. 144 rolls.

These records document the activities of the German foreign office during World War I. Telegrams, memorandums, and instructions detail the relationships between Germany and her allies and chart the progress of the war on various battlefronts.

Records of the German Foreign Office Received by the Department of State From the University of California (Project I). T139. 445 rolls.

These records are a collection of Prussian and Imperial German documents dating roughly before the Franco-Prussian War, 1870-71, to Germany's defeat in World War I. The foreign policies of both Chancellor Otto von Bismarck and Kaiser Wilhelm II are documented. These records are general in nature, dealing with nearly every country and continent, including the United States. They are all written in German without accompanying translations; most are handwritten.

Archives of the German Embassy at Washington (American Historical Association Project I). T290. 52 rolls.

The records in this publication deal with German-American relations during the Weimar Republic (1919-33), with a few documents dated after this period. The bulk of the correspondence, memorandums, and reports concern various embassy matters. These documents were seized by U.S. authorities after Germany declared war on the United States in 1941.

National Archives Gift Collection (Record Group 200)

Belgian Foreign Ministry

The records reproduced here are part of a gift from the Belgian Foreign Ministry Archives to the National Archives.

Records Relating to North America, 1834–1899, From the Archives of the Belgian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. T125. 9 rolls.

This microfilm publication contains correspondence and reports written in French from Belgian commercial, consular, and diplomatic agents in North America, 1834–99. Rolls 1–3 contain reports of expeditions into Texas, Mexico, and northern areas that were not part of the United States at the time. Rolls 4–6 contain diplomatic correspondence. Roll 7 consists of consular correspondence with Belgian consuls in Cincinnati, New York, New Orleans, and San Francisco, most of which date from the Civil War. Rolls 8 and 9 contain records relating to Belgian claims against the United States arising from damage incurred to Belgian property and Belgian citizens during the Civil War. Most of these claims are dated between 1860 and 1868.

Papers of R. Dorsey Mohun, 1892–1913. T294. 3 rolls.

R. Dorsey Mohun was a U.S. commercial agent in the Congo Free State, 1892–95, and U.S. consul at Zanzibar, 1895–97. He was also chief of the Congo Free State Telegraphic Expedition, 1898–1901, and later an agent of the Rubber Exploration Company of New York, as well as chief of the Mission for Mining Research in the Belgian Congo for the International Society of Forestry and Mining. Roll 1 contains Mohun's personal diaries and some letters; roll 2 reproduces more letters as well as maps of the Congo Free State, a rough notebook, and some official papers relating to Mohun; and roll 3 contains more correspondence and miscellaneous papers received by Mohun.

PART 2: PUBLICATIONS OF THE DECIMAL FILE, 1910–1963

From 1910 to 1963 the Department of State used a decimal classification system for its central files, assembling and arranging individual documents according to subject and assigning decimal file numbers. Documents in the decimal file include instructions to and despatches from diplomatic and consular officials, notes between the Department of State and foreign diplomatic and consular representatives in the United States, memorandums prepared by officials of the department, and correspondence with officials of other government departments and with private firms and persons.

The decimal file consists of nine primary classes numbered 0 through 8, each covering a broad subject area:

0. General and Miscellaneous
1. Administration of the U.S. Government
2. Extradition Treaties and Cases
3. Protection of Private and National Interests
4. International Claims Treaties and Cases
5. Multilateral Treaties; International Conferences and Organizations
6. Commerce, Customs, and Trade Agreements
7. Political and Treaty Relations of States
8. Internal Affairs of States

Subjects were further defined within each class and identified by a decimal file number. This number may be followed by a slash mark ("/"), which is followed by another number. The numbers after the slash were assigned to individual documents as they were accumulated on a specific subject; these indicate the number of documents in the file on that subject.

Within several of the primary classes, the documents were arranged by country or area. A two-digit number was assigned to represent each country or area. Some smaller countries and territories were also assigned letters. For example, the number assigned to the United States (11) was also given to U.S. protectorates such as Puerto Rico (11c) and the Canal Zone (11f). Similarly, the number assigned to Eastern Continental Europe (60) was also applied to Poland (60c) and Finland (60d).

Using this system, a document relating to the Internal Affairs of Great Britain (41) would be given a decimal number beginning with "841." This would be followed with another number, usually two digits, corresponding to a particular subject; for example, the designation "841.65" would refer to a document dealing with British manufacturing. This number would be followed by a slash ("/") and another number assigned to the specific document in question, sometimes preceded by the name of a person, place, or event to further distinguish groups of documents.

A document dealing with political relations between states, on the other hand, would be given a number beginning with "7", followed by the lower of the two country numbers, a decimal point, and then the higher country number. This would often be followed by a one-digit number referring to a specific aspect of relations between the two countries. For example, "711.415" would refer to relations between the United States (11) and Great Britain (41) concerning the subject of immigration (5). Political relations between China (93) and Japan (94) would be found in file 793.94, and relations between China and France (51) would be in file 751.93. This file number could then be followed by a subject number, a slash, and the document number.

The appendix to this catalog outlines the main subject categories of the decimal classification system. For a complete description of the decimal file system, see M600, Manual for Classification of Correspondence (4th edition, 1938). For a complete list of decimal file documents from 1910 to 1944, see M973, Purport Lists for the State Department Decimal File, 1910–1944 (654 rolls, DP). The descriptive pamphlet accompanying M973 contains a brief description of the decimal file system and appendixes containing lists of subject and country numbers, as well as a roll-by-roll list of the contents for the filmed purport lists.

ORDER BLANKS CORRECTLY FILLED IN HELP TO SPEED PROCESSING OF YOUR ORDER

Microfilm publication numbers (preceded by an "M" or "T") are assigned to each microfilm publication. Please enter microfilm publication number and roll number in the proper column. As we accept orders for individual rolls as well as for complete microfilm publications, we must know which rolls you wish to purchase.

The microfilm pricing policy is described on page ix of this catalog.
