

THE UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT
EXTENSION

Agricultural Business

UVM Extension helps individuals and communities put research-based knowledge to work.

Photo Credit: Mark Isselhardt

Maple Business Network and Professional Development

- Enhancing maple business education across US states -

University of Vermont Extension is inviting participants to benefit from a project that will develop maple business education resources, expand program offerings across the US, and enhance advisory services. Current or future educators, consultants and other professionals can participate in this effort to seek more training on the maple industry and make connections with similar professionals.

- New maple business education courses and curriculum are under development that will be made available to people and programs seeking to expand programs or services in their region.
- In person and online trainings will be offered from 2020-2022
- Scholarships for travel expenses and registration are available for participants attending maple conferences, events and trainings.
- Networking platforms will be established to facilitate communication between established and new members in the maple technical assistance community.

For more information about this program contact:

Mark Cannella

Email: Mark.Cannella@uvm.edu

Phone: 802-476-2003

Issued in furtherance of Cooperative Extension work, Acts of May 8 and June 30, 1914, in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture. University of Vermont Extension, Burlington, Vermont

University of Vermont Extension, and U.S. Department of Agriculture, cooperating, offer education and employment to everyone without regard to race, color, national origin, gender, religion, age, disability, political beliefs, sexual orientation, and marital or familial status.